Crews fighting waste centre fire

FIRE fighters are still tackling a blaze at a waste recycling centre in Haverhill which started on Monday.

More than 50 fire fighters have been battling the fire at the site in Homefield Road, since 9.30am on Monday, and have yet to get far enough into the smoke-logged building to put it out.

Residents have been advised to keep doors and windows closed and some workers at nearby factories were sent home, as a huge plume of smoke spilled out over the surrounding area.

Station Commander Paul Goodman, the officer in charge of the operation, said crews were working through the night at the scene and were unlikely to be able to completely resolve the incident by today.

Mr Goodman said: "We have cut a huge hole in the roof area and others on the side of the building, but it is still too heavily smoke-logged for us to see enough to safely take a tractor in there and remove the material at the centre of the fire."

"We have a pool of water outside, ready to dump the material in and make sure the fire is out completely.

"It is frustrating, but the weather conditions have worked against us, as there has not been enough wind to disperse the smoke and it has been hanging in the air.

"We are trying our hardest to resolve it as quickly as possible, but we are not prepared to compromise the safety of our fire fighters or the site personnel in trying to achieve this.

"We are working with the Environment Agency to limit the amount of water we use, so that it does not escape into local rivers."

WRG has operated the site since 2000 and employs two full time and one part time members of staff.

The waste involved in the fire was about 150 tonnes of residual household and commercial waste, which had been received earlier in the morning and was waiting to be sent for disposal to landfill.

A company spokesman said: "We will obviously conduct an inquiry as soon as we get full access to the building, although we may never discover the exact cause. We suspect that it may have been brought into the site in a waste load. Our inquiry will help us to decide what to do to ensure a fire does not happen again and we will take necessary steps.

"WRG apologises to our neighbours for the inconvenience caused by the fire and we are working with the fire service on site to deal with the incident."

A spokesman for the Environment Agency said an investigation into the fire was being carried out.

The company has also been told by the agency that it cannot accept any new waste onto the site, once the fire is out, until damage to buildings caused by the fire has been repaired and fire prevention equipment is in place.

Stall set out for health

HEALTH checks were on offer alongside the fruit and vegetables when a team of experts set up stall on a market.

The team were at Haverhill market last Saturday giving out free healthcare advice to the public.

Health coaches and pharmacists manned the stall and offered all sorts of health checks such as blood pressure and blood glucose testing, advice on diet and lifestyle and tips on how to quit smoking.

Hannah Hart-Fisher, Suffolk and Great Yarmouth Local Pharmacy Committee, said "In the centre of this busy community, people could find how much pharmacists can help treat and support people with health concerns.

"Your local community pharmacy is right on your doorstep and can be accessed with or without an appointment and any advice, services or treatments can be given in a private consultation room."

The team of community health coaches has a timetable of events in the area, visit www.livewellsuffolk.org.uk/events-and-activities.php to find out more and to find out more about staying healthy and using your local pharmacy visit www.npa.co.uk/AYP/Keeeping-healthy/.

A VISION of how a town should develop over the next 20 years is being unveiled today at the start of a two-month consultation.

St Edmundsbury Borough Council's Haverhill Vision 2031 and a Rural Vision for the surrounding villages, is its most detailed ever and includes preferred options of where new development should go, as well as including many other topics such as transport, education and employment.

Chris Rand, the council's chief planning officer, said the plan had already been revised to include views expressed in earlier public consultation which began a year ago.

He said: "We had a wide ranging response and this is our first draft of the final document.

"Now we are asking, did we get it right? Did we hear you correctly? If we have got it wrong, tell us.

"This is far more than just a planning document, it is about what you would like the town and surrounding area to be like in 2031. It is about how we accommodate change and growth, and what needs protecting."

Cllr Anne Gower, the council's portfolio holder for Haverhill, stressed how important it was that as many people as possible gave their views.

She said: "I am really conscious of the fact that in Haverhill we seem to be suffering death by consultation, but this is the big one. It is not just about planning, it is about what makes a community a unique and valued and viable place to be. That is why I want to encourage everyone to get behind it.

"If we get it right this time it could make such a difference to the years ahead. We need everyone's experience, vision, hopes and dreams to play a part."

An exhibition on the plans opens at Haverhill Arts Centre tomorrow and there will also be events at Samuel Ward Academy on March 7, Kedington Community Centre on March 12, Clare Old School Community Centre on March 20, and Wickhambrook Social Centre on March 21, all from 4-7pm.

Documents can be viewed and questionnaires completed online at www.stedmundsbury.gov.uk/vision2031, or copies are available from the council offices at Lower Downs Slade in Haverhill and from local libraries.

Completed response forms may be emailed to LDF@stedsb.gov.uk, or sent to planning policy, planning and economic development services, St Edmundsbury Borough Council, West Suffolk House, Western Way, Bury St Edmunds IP33 3YU no later than 5pm on 30 April, 2012.

Empty schools safety fear

Police vandalism warning at closed sites

VANDALS breaking into empty school sites are putting themselves in danger, police have warned.

Chalkstone and Castle Hill Middle schools in Haverhill closed last July as part of Suffolk's Schools Reorganisation programme, to replace its three-tier system with a two-tier structure.

PC Michael Potter, of Haverhill Police, said they had received many calls from concerned people reporting that the school buildings had been broken into.

Piping, radiators and other items have been stolen, probably for their scrap metal value, and damage has also been caused to ceilings and windows smashed.

PC Potter said: "The biggest concern is obviously the condition of the schools, with broken windows, large shards of glass hanging down and ceilings coming down. If people are inside school premises and something happens to them, they are putting themselves in danger."

"We are increasing our patrols and working with the local authority to stop this happening."

"We think it is going to be about six weeks before the buildings are demolished completely."

"As far as the county council is concerned it is not worth the considerable cost of having someone patrol them, when in a few weeks time they are going to be flattened."

"These schools all have perimeter

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

fences and there is no danger to the general public.

"There are young people going there, using them as places to meet and causing criminal damage."

"These are not playgrounds, they are essentially building sites, and these people are putting themselves in danger."

Anyone who sees people breaking into a school or damage caused, is asked to contact Haverhill Police on 101.

A spokesman for Suffolk County Council said both sites were currently being made safe to prevent people from breaking in, including boarding up windows and doors.

The buildings could not be demolished straight away because essential services such as gas and electricity needed to be disconnected first.

The Department for Education also needs to give formal approval before a school building is demolished, and the county council was currently in discussion with the DfE.

No decisions have yet been taken about the future of either site, although there had been a proposal for the Chalkstone site to be used to build a care home and Castle Hill was currently being considered as part of a planning consultation being run by St Edmundsbury Borough Council.

Youngsters tune in to new skills

SPORTS leaders from an upper school spent a morning passing on some skills at a primary school.

Pupils Chidera Nkem-Paul, Tommy Parker, Rebecca Barber and Hollie Catley and teacher Daniel Grindrod from the Samuel Ward Year 9 Sports Leadership Academy in Haverhill paid a visit to Kedington Primary School, where they delivered a morning of sport for Year 1 and Year 5 pupils.

The leaders spent the morning of competitive multi-skills with the Year 1 pupils, teaching them agility, co-ordination and teamwork skills, before leading a tag rugby session for the Year 5 pupils.

During the morning, a group of 26 pupils in small groups took part in activities based around the multi-skills curriculum. The activities allowed pupils to learn new skills in different situations, as well as enabling the leaders to develop their coaching and teaching skills.

The second session was just as successful and the 30 Year 5 pupils worked in their teams to develop co-ordination, passing and tactics in tag rugby before putting them into use in a mini-tournament.

Mr Grindrod said: "The leaders worked exceptionally well with the challenge of older pupils (some of whom were taller than the leaders themselves) and used their amazing subject knowledge to develop the Year 5s' skills."

"The session ended very positively, with the Year 5s declaring that they would love the leaders to come in every week. The four leaders were a credit to Samuel Ward."

Anyone interested in the leaders coming to help at their school, sports club or sports competitions should contact Mr Grindrod through Samuel Ward Academy on (01440) 761511.

Council rejects street lights talk

COUNTY council officials have turned down a request by a town council to discuss street lights being turned back on, despite concerns raised by residents and a police inspector.

Members of Haverhill Town Council meeting on Monday night were unhappy with the response from Suffolk County Council to their call for a meeting to discuss part-restoration of street lighting in the town.

They agreed to go back to the county to press for the issue to be considered.

Since Suffolk County Council introduced its 'intelligent' street lighting system last year, many street lights in Haverhill have been switched off between midnight and 5.30am.

Large parts of the town have been left in darkness and concerns have been raised by residents.

Inspector Peter Ferrie, sector commander for Haverhill Police, raised the issue in January, when he said he believed lack of street lighting was hampering his officers' efforts to tackle a 'crime spike' in the town.

One officer complained that when patrolling estates he could not see anything, and would not have been able to find or catch anyone committing a crime.

Last November a street light was turned back on in Haycocks Road, Haverhill, after resident Gary Byers pointed out the danger created by lack of light on the steep steps behind his home. Residents in the Waveney Terrace area complained recently of repeated vandalism to their cars, but being unable to give a description of offenders to police because the street was so dark.

Will Austin, Haverhill Town Clerk, said: "The county council completely refused our request to talk to them about restoring some of the lights."

"Town councillors were not at all happy about this. We asked them to consider restoring them for a time to assess the impact on crime. I shall be taking it up with them again."

"I have also been asked to try to get some information about the type of crime and when it is occurring, to go back to them with."

Cordons go up at disaster-hit bus shelters

BUS shelters at Haverhill bus station, which have already been replaced once, have now been cordoned because of fears that they might be unstable.

County councillor Anne Gower said: "I am pleased county acted so quickly, because it is a health and safety issue, but the whole thing has been a complete disaster from start to finish. I understand the contractors used the wrong concrete and it is eating into the concrete poles. First we get the wrong shelters, then they leak and now these are unstable. I want to know why we are employing contractors who use the wrong concrete. It gives such a bad impression when the first thing people see when they arrive in Haverhill is coned off bus shelters."

Councillor Guy McGregor, Suffolk County Council's portfolio holder for roads, planning and transport, said: "I share and take very seriously Councillor Gower's concerns about the shelters at Haverhill Bus Station and regret the impact it will have on bus users. This is a difficult situation brought about by contractors using the wrong building materials to install the shelters. But I can give my assurance that the county council is acting fast to resolve the problem. We hope to have the shelters ready to use again by the end of March."

Classic love story in 3D

A TOUCH of culture is coming to a cinema with a showing of the Royal Opera House's stunning production of Madam Butterfly in 3D.

Premieres in RealD 3D-equipped cinemas throughout the UK and worldwide start from Monday, March 5, when there will be a screening at the Cineworld Cinema in Haverhill at 7pm.

Following The Royal Opera's co-production of Carmen in 3D in 2011, the first-ever opera filmed for mass distribution in 3D, Madam Butterfly is a co-production between RealD and the Royal Opera House, filmed during live performances at Covent Garden in July 2011.

Puccini's heartrending tale of love and betrayal has been brought to the big screen in Julian Napier's exquisite film, where the characters and key moments of the action are heightened and enriched through the immersive power of 3D.

Tony Hall, Chief Executive of the Royal Opera House, said: "Madam Butterfly is one of our audiences' favourite productions, so to be able to share this with a global audience with the power of 3D in cinemas is wonderful. It's an opera full of drama and stunning music. I'm really pleased that we can build on the success of Carmen in 3D with RealD and progress our partnership in creating unique experiences for opera and cinema fans."

On screen: a scene from Madam Butterfly.

Sport mile launch is cue for runners

A TOWN'S first official Sport Mile event has been launched and it is hoped to get young and old to join in.

The first Sainsbury's Sport Relief Mile will be held at Haverhill on Sunday, March 25 and is part of the UK's biggest fundraising events.

The Sport Relief Mile is held every other year at locations across the UK and anyone of any age or ability can take part by walking, running or jogging, including those with physical and learning disabilities.

The charity event is being organised by Haverhill Running Club in partnership with Abbeycroft Leisure and will set off from Haverhill Leisure Centre, past the cinema complex and cricket club before the return journey along the pretty railway walk. Entrants can choose to be sponsored to run, jog or walk 1, 3 or 6 miles in aid of Sport Relief.

The money is used by Comic Relief to help transform the lives of poor and vulnerable people, both at home and across the world's poorest countries.

There will be a host of children's activities organised by Haverhill Leisure Centre to mark the event, providing a taster of the Centre's holiday camps which are run during the school holidays.

Activities including racket sports, basketball, football and laser blast will be available in the main sports hall. Trevor Bunch, Chairman of Haverhill Running Club, said: "This is the first year Haverhill has been chosen to host a Sport Relief Mile and the running club is thrilled to lend its support. It is another fantastic coup for people in Haverhill after the announcement last year that the town will be part of the Olympic torch relay.

"You don't have to be an athlete to take part in the Mile, anyone from tots with their mums and dads, to super sprinters can take part on the big day and I hope people in the town will perhaps use this as an incentive to start training and take part in this fantastic charity event."

More than £44 million was raised through Sport Relief in 2010 and organisers are hoping to beat this in 2012.

There will be two waves of runners, with start times at 12pm and 1.30pm. Entry costs £6 per adult, £3 per child or £15 for a family entry. To enter the Haverhill Mile visit www.sportrelief.com

Dad counts down to marathon goal

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

GRATEFUL dad Robert Dean will be pounding the streets to raise money for the hospital which cared for his daughter.

Eight-month-old Ava surprised parents Nikki and Robert by arriving six weeks early and spent the first seven days of her life in the special care baby unit at West Suffolk Hospital in Bury St Edmunds.

Ava is now thriving at the couple's home in Haverhill Road, Kedington, but Robert, 29, decided he would like to try and raise some money for the unit as a thank you for the care she received.

Robert said: "I have always wanted to do a marathon and applied for the London Marathon twice, but got rejected both times. Someone told me that the Edinburgh Marathon was easier to get in and I got accepted straight away. It seemed like the perfect excuse to try to raise some money for the baby unit."

"With Ava being our first child, it was pretty scary anyway, but having her six weeks early was even scarier."

"We were in there with her all day, every day, and they were absolutely brilliant. They made us feel really comfortable and showed us how to do everything. We could not have asked for any more and it would be nice to be able to give something back, to say thank you."

Robert, who works as a laboratory technician, says his training is going well and he is looking forward to the event on May 27. He has already raised £400 towards his £1,000 target and donations can be made at www.justgiving.com/bobs-stacey.

School's a sorry sight to see

Sir, looking toward the old Chalkstone Middle School building from Tesco's car park, what a sorry and a dismal sight greets your eyes, with open and smashed windows on both ground and upper floors.

The youth of the town will now be using this empty shell of a building as a sex and drugs den (probably), as well as a target for more wanton destruction.

Are we to understand that Suffolk County Council have still not made a decision on what to do with this site?

Surely to demolish it now would be in the best interest of the town, to stop any further anti-social behaviour being carried out there.

It also seems that the sign on the front gate saying: "A security company protect these premises" is clearly not an effective deterrent to vandals. Of course, the council may have the view that the youth of Haverhill may be perfectly good at the demolition of the old school building, without any expenditure having to be paid out of our taxes.

Being that the Easter and the summer holidays are fast approaching, I can only wait in anticipation for the building to be further vandalised and then razed to the ground by an arsonist. Job done.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Haverhill Family History Group

THE new year brought an excellent turn-out of family historians to the January meeting, which has been held in the library for seven years as a weekend event, giving more people a chance to discover their ancestors. Bernard Amps, from Cambridgeshire Family History Society started the day off with an illustrated talk on why

'brickwalls' might occur and how to climb over or look round them to find missing people from a family tree.

The rest of the day gave beginners and those already deep into genealogy the chance to consult experts from the Suffolk, Essex and Cambridgeshire Societies in order to further their research. More than 70 people attended the free event, but profits from the refreshments and donations amounted to over £107 for the St Nicholas Hospice funds. Many visitors were from the Haverhill area, but a couple came from Bourne in Lincolnshire, and others from Hunstanton. One man, in particular, was very pleased to leap over his brickwall.

After 20 years of searching, Graham managed to fill in the story of his ancestor – John Brook who was born in Kent in 1819 and died in 1867. All he knew about John was from the 1861 census, where he was listed as a Chelsea Pensioner with his Irish wife. In the days before internet access he'd managed to trace John's birth and death from parish records, but wanted to know more about John's life in the Regiment. With the help of Mick Denley, committee member of the Haverhill Group, the records were found on the Ancestry website on the library's computers, and Graham now has many pages detailing John Brooks's Army service.

For anyone wishing to start their own family tree, the next meeting is at the usual time of 7.30pm on Thursday, March 8 at The Old Independent Church Schoolroom in Hamlet Road, Haverhill. The speaker will be well-known expert Ian Waller, who gave an excellent talk on London ancestors at his last visit. This time his talk will be entitled You may wish you'd never started this! For more information call Alan on 01440 704157.

Community rallies for cooking quest

CHILDREN, parents and residents are being encouraged to roll up their sleeves and help a primary school's bid to win a national cookery challenge.

Members of the Let's Get Cooking club at Coupals Primary School in Haverhill are joining others from around the country in trying to get the most people cooking the same healthy meal on the same day.

The Big Cookathon is on Thursday, March 8, and organisers are out to beat last year's success, when more than 50,000 people took part.

The Coupals club members and their supporters will be making ham and cheesy crumble, or a vegetarian alternative, for a chance to win a share in £5,000 in prize money.

Last year, the school managed to involve nearly 400 people in the event and it is hoped to top that number.

Sandra Linnane, club co-ordinator, said: "It's a massive challenge to have so many cooking on the same day, but we're determined to help Let's Get Cooking notch up its biggest total and to get even more people cooking in Haverhill."

The event will start at 9am, with more than 300 people expected to take part at school. Family, friends and local businesses can take part in their own homes or premises.

Anyone wanting to join in should call Mrs Linnane on (01440) 763933.

Disabled woman stole doc's prescription pad

A DISABLED woman who stole a doctor's prescription pad and tried to obtain drugs for herself has been given a conditional discharge by magistrates.

Joanne Ross, 44, admitted charges of stealing the pad from the Crown Health Centre in Haverhill last August and fraudulently using it to get a prescription, when she appeared at Bury St Edmunds Magistrates' Court on Wednesday.

Lesla Small, prosecuting, told the court that Ross had visited the health centre and her request for a morphine-type drug was refused by the doctor she saw.

When the doctor left her alone in the room for a short time to check her records, she took the pad and left.

She then went to the pharmacy at the Christmas Maltings surgery and handed in a prescription form. She was known to the chemist, who did not feel it was genuine, and asked her to come back for it. She did not return and the prescription was never issued.

Nick Wray – representing Ross – of Cangle Junction, Haverhill, who appeared in court in a wheelchair, said she had become ill eight years ago.

He told the court Ross was diagnosed with a disorder which left her paralysed from the neck down for 18 months, but had since regained the use of her upper body.

She also suffers from angina, polycystic ovaries and Crohn's Disease and her regular medication includes the drug she had been trying to obtain.

Last August, her full-time carers had been away, her regular repeat prescription had not been collected and she had been in considerable pain.

Mr Wray said: "It was an inept, foolish and bound-to-be-discovered activity. It was a spontaneous act. She could not have gone to a worse place with the prescription."

Centre is burgled

THIEVES broke into a media centre and stole a camcorder.

The burglary happened on Monday, between 7.40pm and 7.45pm at the former Parkway Middle School in Park Road, now Castle Manor Media Centre, when two people prised open a rear window. The pair, who wore hooded tops, one dark blue, fled with a red camcorder.

Anyone who can help trace the thieves should contact Suffolk Police on 101.

Police call for advice

PEOPLE are being asked to help police set their priorities for patrolling in Haverhill during the next three months.

The Haverhill Safer Neighbourhood Team will hold its priority setting meeting on Monday, March 5 at 7pm at Samuel Ward Academy in Chalkstone Way. PC Michael Potter said: "We would like to see some fresh faces and encourage people to come along and tell us their concerns."

Haverhill chef Hannah Jones enjoys sharing recipes and highlighting the very best of local produce. Hannah, who lives in Eastern Avenue with partner Matthew and young children Georgia and Jamie, is a former West Suffolk College student and chef at The Plough in Hundon and The Swan in Lavenham. She runs her own business making bespoke cakes and pastries, www.hannahsbuns.co.uk.

Watch out for TV date

I HAVE some exciting news to share with you this week. As you know, I trained as a chef and have worked in some lovely establishments. I have been on many cooking courses and worked at Rick Stein's restaurant in Cornwall.

At the end of last year, I applied to go on a television show and I had to travel to London and take my cakes and bakes with me. I went through an interview process and the judges tried my cakes.

A few weeks later, the television company phoned me and told me that they were extremely impressed with me and my cakes, and that I had got through to the final. I was so pleased and got to work on my own recipe that I would make.

On the day of filming I was really excited, but nervous, too. The crew were so lovely and made me feel right at home. I even got to meet two new baking buddies, who I keep in contact with, and we share recipes and ideas together. The show is called Baking Mad with Eric Lanlard and it is to be shown on Monday, on Channel 4. I am not sure which one I will be in yet, so we will just have to keep our eyes peeled. The recipe I will be sharing with you this week is the cheesecake I created for the show – chocolate hazelnut fluff cheesecake with caramelised salted nuts and warm toffee sauce. One more announcement – Hannah's Buns will be catering for The Pink Rose Tea Party next week and tickets can be bought from Sarah Gibbs at www.finishingtouchinteriorsboutique.co.uk

Hannah's super cheesecake

Chocolate hazelnut fluff cheesecake with caramelised salted nuts and warm toffee sauce

50g butter
A handful of chocolate chips
■ Melt the butter and bash the biscuits into crumbs.
■ Add the chocolate chips to the biscuits and pour in the melted butter.
■ Mix to combine and spread the biscuits mix into six small ring tins then pat down, so when the butter goes hard it will hold the base together. Then put in the freezer.
For the Fluff
Ingredients
50g egg whites
1 cup of glucose
A quarter tsp salt
1 cup icing sugar
Half a tbsp vanilla extract
■ To make the fluff, whisk the egg whites, glucose and salt together in a freestanding mixer or a hand-held one. Mix for five minutes until it becomes thick and doubled in size.
■ On a slow speed, add the icing sugar and vanilla.

Ingredients
250g cream cheese
3 leaves of gelatine
150g fluff
2x tbsp Nutella
■ Put the gelatine into a tub with cold water.
■ Mix the cream cheese with the fluff and Nutella.
■ Once the gelatine has gone transparent, drain the water and melt the gelatine in the microwave for a few seconds until it turns to liquid.

■ Slowly pour the gelatine into the cream cheese and mix well.
■ Take the rings out of the freezer and fill with the mixture and then place into the fridge.
Salted caramel nuts
Ingredients
100g sugar
100g hazelnuts
Pinch of sea salt
■ Melt the sugar in a pan on medium heat and lay out a piece of parchment paper on your work surface.
■ Once the sugar has melted, add the nuts and the salt and quickly mix and take off the heat.
■ Pour the mixture out onto the parchment and leave to cool.
■ Once cooled, blitz in a process or cut up some with a sharp knife.
Toffee Sauce
Ingredients
250g sugar

■ Once melted, add the butter and cream and stir very quickly until all combined.
■ Then you just need to plate it up.

ALIENS have landed at a primary school – but turned out to be of the friendly, ice-cream-eating variety.

Crackly messages sent from a far-off planet, the broken remains of a small spaceship and green slime dripping from taps intrigued the children at Clements Primary School in Haverhill.

The alien landing was part of a 'Writing for Real' project designed to create enthusiasm for written communication. Following the arrival of the elusive VFA (Very Friendly Alien), children from nursery to year 6 enjoyed imagining what the VFA might look like, where it had come from, what it would like to eat and how it might be helped to return to its home planet.

A welcoming school lunch was arranged where green jelly and rocket biscuits were on the menu and the children learnt from an assembly visitor how the alien survived by eating strawberry ice-cream.

Jane Trampnow, the school's literacy co-ordinator, said: "The staff and children have loved being part of the unfolding adventure and we are looking forward to sharing some outstanding pieces of writing and associated artwork."

Alien invasion at primary school!

It came from outer space: Kelsey Earls, Adrienne Da Silva, James Pinker and Elliott Sharrod at the 'landing site'.

Picasso painting is the subject of art group's discussion

AN evening of discussion on a painting by Picasso is being hosted by an art group.

On Wednesday, March 28, Haverhill Art Group, in conjunction with the Haverhill Arts Centre, is presenting another evening with Professor Anthony Slinn.

This time the lecture with slides will be on the Pablo Picasso painting Guernica, which depicts the bombing of the town by the Germans during the Spanish civil war.

The lecture will be in the main hall at Haverhill Arts Centre and tickets are £4 for adults, £2 members, students £1, available from the box office on (01440) 714140.

Group chairman Bill Hubbuck said: "If it is anything like his other talks it will be both entertaining and very informative."

Club's fight for survival

Funds must be found to pay for leader as mayor tells members: 'We are richer for your efforts'

Support: Mayor Maureen Byrne meets the committee, members and volunteers at Haverhill Gateway Club.

CP

A CLUB which has provided social activities for adults with learning disabilities for the past four decades could close unless funds can be raised to pay for its leader.

The Haverhill Gateway Club, which is affiliated to Mencap, is no longer funded by Suffolk County Council and is now seeking funds to meet the cost of its professional leader, Jill Moss.

Chairman Will Harrison said: "As residential care has been reduced and our members have moved into the community, we have been able to encourage members to maintain links and make new connections in the community."

"The Burton Centre is an excellent facility, offering accessibility and a community base. We need to fund our professional leader to continue to survive."

Haverhill mayor Cllr Maureen Byrne joined the Haverhill Gateway Club to enjoy an evening of pancakes and games, as well as celebrating the fact that it has met at the Burton Centre in Camps Road for the past 20 years.

BY JO DEEKS

Cllr Byrne met the chairman, management committee, members and volunteers of the 40-strong club, which provides social events for people with learning disabilities.

She said: "Through Gateway Club you are all demonstrating that difference is not a barrier, but a strength. Haverhill is enriched by your activities. 'Social inclusion' is the trendy term for what you are achieving – for me that doesn't come close to describing the importance of your club in our Haverhill community. We are richer for your efforts and participation."

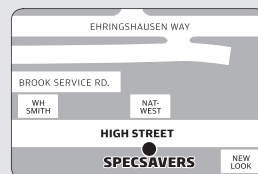

The club has a fortnightly programme of meetings at the Burton Centre and organises trips and parties. Members are active on the management committee and contribute enthusiastically to the substantial programme.

The club welcomes new members and volunteers and strives to provide interesting activities and events, a social outlet and respite for hard-pressed carers.

Active: at the Samuel Ward Sports Development Centre students train in football coaching and below, young golfers. CP

A sporting chance for students at academy

A NEW sports academy has proved a big success in its first year – and is now recruiting more students.

The Samuel Ward Sports Development Centre in partnership with Haverhill Rovers FC is now halfway through its first year and the school is now looking to recruit potential students to start in September.

The course combines regular training and matches, the chance to gain recognised coaching qualifications and hands-on coaching experience in the local community, along with studying on the BTEc level 3 extended diploma in sport course.

The academic course is the equivalent to three A-levels and will allow students to progress to either the workplace or university to study areas such as sport science, PE teaching and sports coaching.

At the end of the two years students will leave with both an academic qualification and a variety of sports coaching and leadership experiences and qualifications.

A spokesman said; "By combining a student's passion for playing and coaching sport along with the opportunity to acquire a well recognised vocational qualification, the course provides students with the chance to fulfil both their academic and sporting ambitions.

"The course also has four young golfers, who follow the same route and timetable but attend coaching and competitions at Haverhill Golf Club to further their ambitions."

For further information, contact Samuel Ward Academy and ask for a sixth form application pack on (01440) 761511.

£362,000 grant is a huge boost for community transport in national first COMMUNITY transport in Suffolk has received a massive boost following a £362,000 grant from the Department for Transport.

The money is being used to form a new county-wide umbrella organisation called Suffolk Community Transport, the first of its kind in England. It will champion community transport issues and implement an initial three-year strategy to enhance local voluntary transport services.

The aim of the new organisation will be to support and increase the sustainability of the 19 community transport operators in Suffolk, including those in Haverhill and Newmarket.

Throughout 2011, a total 76 local authorities in rural England received major grants from the Department for Transport as part of a £10m nationwide scheme. Due to the reliance on community transport in Suffolk the money has been used to fund the new group. Pensioners, people with disabilities, schoolchildren, students, social services, day care centres, residential and nursing homes, charities and youth organisations are just some of the groups which depended on community transport in Suffolk to carry out core duties.

John Phillips, one of the Suffolk Community Transport directors, said: "The provision of community transport has never been so important as it is in today's society."

"It is no exaggeration to say that without community transport services, particularly in rural areas, many groups and organisations would simply not be able to function and the quality of life of many of our residents would be drastically reduced, in some cases even leading to complete isolation and even a threat to health."

Five directors have already been appointed to the board of Suffolk Community Transport and it will soon be recruiting a full-time business manager.

ANTIQUES VALUATION ROADSHOW COMES TO HAVERHILL

IN ALMOST every home in the country there is a corner where something of value lies hidden away that could be turned into cash.

Wind farm 'test mast' set to get the green light

PLANS to put up an 80m mast to assess whether an area of Suffolk countryside is suitable for a wind farm are recommended for approval by planners – despite objections from neighbours, conservation groups and councillors.

Members of St Edmundsbury Borough Council's development control committee are recommended to approve the application from South Suffolk Wind Energy Ltd to put up the meteorological mast for a temporary period of three years at Canhams Farm, Stoke by Clare, at their meeting today.

A previous planning application to establish a wind farm in an area of countryside between Stoke by Clare and Clare also attracted strong opposition and prompted the formation of a

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

750 member Stop Turbines Over Clare action group.

Commenting on the latest application, the group said the mast would be higher than other structure in the area and would be visible for many miles around. If it was approved, data produced should be released to all objectors.

The report to the committee said the mast would collect data to determine whether the site was an appropriate and safe location for a more permanent development.

Its temporary approval would not be any indication that a wind farm would be approved and any future application would be judged on its own merits.

The Colne-Stour Countryside Association objected to the plan, saying: "Unless this is refused there will be a whole series of very large turbines scarring the skyline in this beautiful part of south Suffolk.

"This is not the place for wind generation. This part of the upper Stour Valley is both historically and culturally important and it deserves to be protected."

Objections were also received from the Dedham Vale and Stour Valley Project, Suffolk Preservation Society, Clare, Birdbrook, Ashen and Belchamp St Paul parish councils, the Clare Society, Clare Tourist Forum, county councillor Jane Midwood and more than 20 residents.

The report concluded: "The width of the mast and the guy wires will result in a development that, while visible, will not be so injurious to the visual amenity of the area as to justify a refusal of permission in this instance."

Design brief: Students helped create the mural at West Suffolk College.

CP

Mural mania for college students

STUDENTS from Haverhill and Newmarket have helped to create a decorative mural at their college.

The monochrome mural, incorporating painting and collage, has been created by art students at West Suffolk College in Bury St Edmunds.

Level 2 BTEC diploma art and design course students have decorated the walls of a long corridor in the School of Participation, used by Synergy and Princes Trust students.

Students who took part included Alexandra Hubback and Holly Valentine, from Haverhill, Kayne Quick and Claire Watson, from Newmarket and Ryan Bowers from Lakenheath.

Sherry Fry, head of School of Participation, approached the students and asked them to create some fun, exciting work which would showcase their artistic talent.

The work was facilitated by Joel Millerchip, a freelance illustrator who teaches one day a week on the course.

Course director Sophie Knappett said: "This has been a great opportunity for my students and I am very proud of what they have achieved."

Sherry said: "The piece is fun, imaginative and controversial in places. It is exactly what I imagined the students have been true to the brief I gave them. It is fantastic – they are very talented students."

We're backing Rwandan team

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

TWO Haverhill companies have joined forces to launch a new website about the Rwandan Olympic and Paralympics teams' pre-Games training camp in Bury St Edmunds.

The website will provide information on the legacy project surrounding the West Suffolk Athletics Arena at Abbeycroft Leisure's Bury St Edmunds Leisure Centre, which has been chosen to host the Rwandan teams as they prepare for London 2012.

Olympic athletes will arrive in July and Paralympic athletes in August. The St Edmundsbury Steering Group for the London 2012 Games was set up to ensure that the legacy of the training camp stretches across the borough far beyond 2012.

The project is called Go Rwanda, which reflects the group's hope that the people of St Edmundsbury will adopt the African country as their second team when cheering on athletes during this summer's Games.

The new website has been provided by Haverhill-based creative agency The Design Office and PR company Simply PR.

The two businesses worked with the steering group to create a website which reflected the project's aims in the areas of work in sport, education, culture and business and will bring together news and events on activities of the project.

Net result: from left, Sue Warren of Simply PR, Selina Austin of The Design Office and Warren Smyth, member of the St Edmundsbury Steering Group for the Olympic and Paralympic Games. CP.

Member of the steering group Warren Smyth, CEO of Abbeycroft Leisure, said: "The new website has really brought the project to life in a very visual way and is in itself a legacy as it will be updated throughout the year with information, news and events."

"On behalf of the steering group I would like to thank The Design Office and Simply PR who have donated their services to this community project."

Website users can find sections specifically on the pre-Games training camp, the legacy project and the steering group's appeal Sport For Rwanda as well as news and events updates.

Cllr Sara Mildmay-White, St Edmundsbury Borough Council cabinet member for culture and sport, said: "This attractive website exemplifies the way that individuals and organisations are coming together to create a lasting Olympic legacy for the borough."

"Anticipation is really beginning to build with the Olympic Torch relay coming to both Bury St Edmunds and Haverhill."

Visit the new website at www.gorwanda.co.uk. The Go Rwanda project is also on Facebook at www.facebook.com/GoRwanda and on Twitter @GoRwanda.

My 17-year battle with 'the invisible illness'

After falling ill with ME as a teenager, ALEX TERRY has not only fought chronic fatigue – she's had to face being called lazy, depressed and a hypochondriac. Now the 34-year-old from Harston is finally coming alive again after undergoing a new treatment which she swears has transformed her life. Here, she tells her story.

AT the age of 16, just two weeks after excitedly starting sixth form in Cambridge, I was struck down with a mystery illness.

It started with the normal progression of flu: one week in bed followed by one week gradual recovery. Most people continue to recover over the next few weeks until they are back to feeling 'normal' again. After 17 years, now age 34, I have still not recovered to that extent.

I have ME, which stands for Myalgic Encephalopathy. I discovered ME meant my muscles couldn't keep me upright for long, my memory didn't work, I couldn't concentrate, my body couldn't heat itself, my joints and limbs felt leaden and sore, I was constantly exhausted and my brain kept blanking out.

The medical profession refused to help, so unlike most children struck down with a severely debilitating illness, I was considered a hypochondriac and undeserving of sympathy, support or care.

In the early 90s, when I first became ill, ME was commonly known as 'Yuppie Flu' and as being 'all in the head'.

Bar a few, most of my teachers were embarrassed by my change and either condemned me as lazy or tried to avoid me. My friends carried on with their merry teenage experimentations with barely a thought for me. I was as invisible as my illness.

Fortunately, my mum, Dorothy, never stopped fighting. She discovered what was wrong with me, but could find no treatment and no cure. She spent all her time helping me get up, day after day, month after month, and kept my muscles and brain from completely wasting. My 'brain fog' gradually became less oppressive and, eventually, my mum's perseverance meant I gained enough qualifications to go to university.

I learned how to manage activities to fit my limited energy reserves and was able to gain a first class degree in ancient history and archaeology at the University of Newcastle upon Tyne, and then an MA with distinction in ancient history at The University of Nottingham. Success was tainted by the gradual realisation that every time I pushed my brain or body hard, my ME would eventually crash. Each crash took an increasing amount of time to crawl back from.

I came to terms with my illness six years ago, accepting I had about half the energy of a healthy person my age and could only work part-time. Working three days a week left me four rest days a week and I used most of my five weeks' annual leave to give me booster rest days.

That routine left me with enough energy for my husband Paul to decide it was time to get married. I always wanted to wait until I had at least 80 per cent normal energy but, after eight years, Paul worried that day might never arrive. I planned the day with military precision to give me plenty of rest time. It was wonderful and I looked well on the surface, but I took months to recover from the resulting pain.

This highlights a major problem faced by ME sufferers: the public knows the reality of well documented illnesses and can appreciate the huge effort. But ME is not talked about or recognised. People see sufferers smiling and behaving normally and, unaware of the lonely, painful months spent conserving energy, feel justified in believing the myth that it is not 'real'. You are made to feel shameful when you have ME.

I never stopped searching for treatments. I came across Vegepa, a concentrated omega-3 supplement developed by Cambridge company Igennus, which eased some symptoms. Apart from that I could only find therapies which were either basic common sense or worryingly perpetuated the 'it's all in the head' theory of ME. One well publicised so-called treatment even proclaims that people with ME can't get better because they are locked in a loop of fear of non-recovery.

GPs only ever offered me anti-depressants. I always ask if they have been proven to help with ME, otherwise why would I take mind-altering drugs when ME has already harmed my memory and ability to concentrate? The universal response is: "There is no evidence but that is our treatment." If there had been any suggestion anti-depressants help ME specifically, I would have tried them.

Then by complete chance in 2009, while reading a newsletter in a Trumpington chemist, I discovered the treatment that has transformed my quality of life, the Perrin Technique. It suggests a very plausible, biomedical cause for ME. As far as I understand it the technique is based on the theory ME results when something like a virus causes a fault in the lymphatic system, which is regulated by the

WE asked Dr Charles Shepherd, honorary medical adviser for the ME Association, for the charity's official line on the Perrin Technique.

This is what he told us: "In the absence of orthodox medicine having an effective form of treatment for ME/CFS people with this illness are often desperate to try anything that is claimed to help.

"As a result there are a large number of expensive and speculative forms of treatment available in the alternative, complementary and private medical sectors being aimed at people with ME/CFS.

"The ME Association does not recommend or endorse their use until results from good quality independent clinical trials have established that a treatment aimed at the underlying disease process has been shown to be both safe and effective, and is not just the result of someone having faith in the treatment or the practitioner carrying it out.

"In the case of this osteopathic treatment, I am not convinced that the scientific theory upon which it is based is correct."

sympathetic system and should remove waste toxins produced by every tissue in the body.

I have always described the feeling of ME as the pain you get after a very long, hard walk. The lactic acid makes your muscles hurt and shake, and your body is at the point of collapse. Add to this the sensation of a severe hangover. Being poisoned by a long-term build up of toxins seems a very likely reason for why my muscles feel leaden and my brain doesn't work properly.

The treatment can take more than two years and is initially intensive. I was treated at a clinic in Oakington once a week for the first 12 weeks, followed by every two weeks for 12 weeks and so on. The lymphatic build-up is drawn out of the muscles and into the defective drainage system where the pressure forces the waste to be discharged. Gradually treatments become more spaced out as the practitioner tries to get the system working on its own again. The gap between my treatments is now a minimum of three months.

No-one pretends this treatment has a medically proven track record. Developed in the 80s, it is relatively new and is treated with osteopathic methods rather than drugs, which means the medical profession has no motivation to back it or research it. The treatment is likely to make you swell up and feel a lot worse to start with. But logically, if so much toxic waste is being forced into motion that it causes large swellings, it makes sense the body would feel worse.

I also do simple breathing and stretching exercises at home, and every night I knead my torso upwards and my neck downwards, while my husband does the same for my back. Although it was initially very difficult as I was exhausted, sore and consequently fractious, we have kept this daily routine for 24 months so far.

Month eight was the turning point when I started to feel better. Now, after two years, I'm mostly swelling free and the improvements are becoming more constant. Most of the time my muscles and joints are pain free, my concentration is not bad, and I have so much more energy. I have enough to stay with friends for whole weekends and, for the first time in 10 years, have been able to go out in the evenings.

Another amazing upside to this treatment is that I now have a chance for a family. Previously, I knew I did not have the energy to look after a child. That is no longer the case and, after a year to enjoy my restored health, my husband Paul and I plan to start trying.

I get very angry that this treatment is not publicised. GPs and ME organisations do not need to recommend it but they should let patients know it exists. If I had known about it when I was first ill, my experience of life would be very different. As it was, much of my late teens and 20s was spent in a semi-vegetative state.

Research into ME needs to focus on biomedical factors. Until then I cannot see medical or public perceptions changing. During 2011 there have been slight positive advances, with a Parliamentary debate on ME occurring in February. There is also an e-petition on the Government's petition website requesting that an independent committee oversee Government funding for biomedical research into CFS/ME. E-petition 491 has more than 1,511 signatures so far.

This is not a short or an easy treatment and it's not a cure. However, after just the first year, I looked back and realised it had transformed my life. If you know of someone who has ME, or who has a family member who suffers from it, tell them about this treatment. They might decide not to try it, but at least they will have had the option.

More information on the Perrin Technique can be found at www.theperrinclinic.com, which lists practitioners throughout the country.

DESPITE the recession, a local business has continued to thrive throughout its first year, and has some very special offers available this week to say thank you to its supporters.

Thomas William Gentleman's Barber was first opened in February 2010 by top barber Thomas Edwards and his family. At the tender age of 21, Thomas has already made a big impact in the world of barber shops thanks to his natural flair and attention to detail.

Trained at Alan D Hairdressing Academy in London, he worked for two years in Bury St Edmunds, before deciding that Haverhill was lacking the traditional touch and opening up his own business.

The shop, which is currently on the look-out for a new barber to meet rising customer numbers, combines the best of both worlds, with retro delights such as a wet shave with hot towels and facial oils, comforting old-fashioned chairs, fresh and modern interior design and, of course, displaying the traditional red and white striped pole.

If you bring along this advert you can now receive a haircut for £5 (normally £9.50) or a wet shave for £10, instead of £15, from Thursday, March 1 until Thursday, March 8 inclusive.

There's no booking system, so you can just arrive on the day for an immediate appointment, or a short wait on a comfy sofa with a complimentary beer (over 18s only!), tea, coffee, coke or hot chocolate.

All ages are welcome at the welcoming shop, where there's also a wide range of products for sale, including American Crew products, Fudge, Evo, Moroccan Oil and Goldwell, and gift vouchers are also available. Look out for more offers on Facebook.

Taking steps to beat Alzheimer's

BY RACHEL ALLEN

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A DEDICATED fundraiser has a very personal reason for taking part in a charity event in aid of dementia research – after her husband was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease aged 43.

Sarah King, of Linton, saw at first-hand the devastation that Alzheimer's causes as her husband Andrew, a geneticist, developed an early-onset form of the disease about six years ago.

Andrew, now 49, can no longer walk or talk and is fed by a tube while living at a care home in March.

Sarah said: "I wouldn't wish this on anyone but I wouldn't want a life without Andrew. Nothing changes the fact that I'm still proud to say this wonderful man is my husband."

Sarah, 44, is a part-time librarian and a big supporter of Alzheimer's Research UK. She took part in the charity's Big Walk – supported by our sister paper, the Cambridge News – last year and is to lend her support again in May.

She said: "I will probably be taking part in the walk though I don't know whether I will be walking or stewarding yet."

"It's very important to raise funds for this charity as it is funding research to find a cure."

Miranda Mays, community fundraising manager for Alzheimer's Research UK, said: "We first got to know Sarah when she took part in our Big Walk last year. Since then, we've been delighted to welcome her into our community of supporters. Full of enthusiasm, Sarah has been busy raising money for our pioneering dementia research and raising awareness by sharing her story."

"Sarah's wonderful support is greatly appreciated and we're looking forward to seeing her again at our Big Walk."

"We aim to raise £50,000 – enough to fund an entire pilot research project to help defeat dementia as well as vital equipment for our scientists."

The Big Walk is on Sunday, May 13, starting at 10am from Comberton Village College.

Registration is £15 for adults, £7.50 for under 18s.

Notes from history

LISA MILLARD meets the Cambridge period instrument pioneers who have allowed baroque and classical masterworks to be heard as they were originally supposed to sound.

FORMED in Cambridge in 1973 by famed conductor Christopher Hogwood, a graduate of Pembroke College, the Academy of Ancient Music (AAM) is a global phenomenon widely acclaimed as one of the world's greatest pioneering period-instrument bands.

Known for its musical excellence, the orchestra uses period instruments to play baroque and classical music pieces as the composer intended.

A deep understanding of music underlies the AAM and the orchestra's achievements are fostered by a range of guest artists, including singers Dame Emma Kirkby, Dame Joan Sutherland and Cecilia Bartoli as well as a collaboration with the Choir of King's College, Cambridge. The latter produced the world's first live classical cinecast, beaming Handel's Messiah into thousands of cinemas across the globe.

The AAM plays around the world but is a Cambridge institution and has a regular season at West Road Concert Hall and annual concerts with the Choir of King's College.

"The history of the Academy of Ancient Music is truly global and, at the same time, we're very much rooted at home here in Cambridge," says Toby Chadd, the academy's external relations manager.

"What's special about the AAM is that our music making is inspired by the performances which Bach, Handel and Haydn would have known," explains Toby. "So we play on original instruments (gut strings, not metal, trumpets without valves); we very often don't have a conductor, but are directed by one of the musicians; and we play from original scores rather than later editions."

"It's not an academic exercise, though: it's a way of making music come alive by recreating the passion and vitality which composers, musicians and audiences felt when it was first composed. We were one of the first orchestras to take this revolutionary attitude, and I'm proud to say that we're still at the forefront of the classical music world"

"Some of our most vibrant music making takes place in

IN TUNE: The AAM works in collaboration with King's College, Cambridge.

Cambridge.

"We have given UK premieres of recently-discovered works and celebrated well-known masterpieces, and the season ahead is brimming with highlights."

Musicians lined up to perform with the Academy this year include violinist Alina Ibragimova (recently nominated for the 2011 recordings together.

"Every Easter we perform a Bach Passion together in King's Chapel, and last year this was brought to London for the first time, to a sold-out Cadogan Hall.

"We are also Orchestra-in-Residence at the University of Cambridge and hold a series of masterclasses with students from the Faculty of Music. Many of our musicians are teachers and professors, and passing on our expertise and passion to the next generation is at the heart of the AAM's mission."

The academy is also dedicated to involving young people as audience members, offering £3 tickets to its Cambridge concerts for anyone who is under 26 or a full-time student.

"Over the coming year in Cambridge, we'll be performing music spanning three centuries," says Toby, "from Monteverdi to Beethoven, ranging in scale from intimate solo violin works to grand symphonies. There's something for everyone."

A central part of re-discovering the original sounds of classical and baroque music lies, of course, in the instruments.

"Rather than using violins and trumpets built with the latest technology, the academy challenges itself to work with the instruments on which the music would have been first performed."

A laugh a minute

WRITER, director and stand-up, Stewart Lee, below, is an understated comedian. Performing in smaller venues, and refusing to appear do the 'panel show' thing to get himself known, he has instead carved an unusually diverse career for himself since his early days as part of the Lee and Herring duo in the 1990s.

In fact, Lee gave up comedy early last decade after he felt he'd said all he had to say, but soon found a new lease of life with Jerry Springer – The Opera the critically acclaimed, cheekily controversial stage show which upset a few Christians but still won four Olivier Awards in 2004. Since then, Lee has rolled out several TV and stand-up shows, including Stewart Lee's Comedy Vehicle and If You Prefer a Milder Comedian, Please Ask for One, in which he made a joke about Richard Hammond getting decapitated, which the Daily Mail took slightly the wrong way. He was in Cambridge last year with his live show Vegetable Stew, and returns for 2012 with a self-deprecating new show all about being middle-aged and boring, asking: can a married man, whose life now consists mainly of watching Scooby Doo cartoons with a four-year-old boy, still have anything funny to say?

■ Stewart Lee, Cambridge Corn Exchange, March 7 at 8pm. Tickets are £18.50. Contact (01223) 357851 / www.cornex.co.uk.

BRIGHTON hip-hop duo Rizzle Kicks have been causing a bit of a stir across the UK, gathering fans of all ages – including, unlikely as it may seem, a certain Stephen Fry.

Jordan "Rizzle" Stephens, 20, and Harley "Sylvester" Alexander-Sule, also 20, first met when they were tiny but grew apart, reuniting in their teens, though it wasn't until they both went to Brit School that they came together musically.

They released their debut album Stereo Typical last October, and are now whipping crowds into a frenzy on their first headline tour.

Arriving at The Junction, the queue was endless and predominantly made up of teens and university students – but there were still a few groups of older fans (like me and my boyfriend) holding their own.

Support act Random Impulse, a guitar-playing grime MC, got the crowd warmed up with some heavy beats, followed by Pepper, a female soloist who blended her soulful voice with techno beats for a unique sound (she is signed to Dizzee Rascal's record label, Dirtzee Stank).

After much anticipation, Rizzle Kicks bounced on to the stage for the first gig of their tour to a deafening roar from the crowd.

Opening with Prophet (Better Watch It), they encouraged the crowd to "raise the roof" and bounce around for their next song, When I Was a Youngster, which got even the most reserved hitting the floor.

They threw in a remix of their friend Ed Sheeran's You Need Me, I Don't Need You – dividing the audience into two for a sing-off at the chorus.

The duo's infectious energy and great sense of humour saw them putting their own stamp on the Bond theme, before slowing the tempo slightly for Miss Cigarette and the last song on their album, Traveller's Chant.

Then it was back to full pelt for an energetic rendition of the White Stripes' Seven Nation Army followed by their recent top five hit Mama Do The Hump – complete with enthusiastic demonstration of the hump in question (don't worry, it's only a dance move).

After a brief interval they came back to the Harry Potter theme, which was pretty surreal, before launching into – what else? – signature tune Down With The Trumpets, sparking a mass outburst of freestyle dancing and big stupid grins all round.

Missed it? Rizzle Kicks will be back in Cambridge for a show at the Corn Exchange on November 20

The big film

THIS MEANS WAR

Certificate 12A, 97m

ALL'S fair in love and war for two US government spies with their hearts set on the same woman in an action-packed comedy from director McG. This hare-brained buddy movie delivers slam-bang thrills and a few sparkling one-liners as rivalry between the two elite operatives escalates out of control, resulting in amusing abuses of CIA resources. The film opens with a fast-paced action sequence in Hong Kong, where agents FDR (Chris Pine) and Tuck (Tom Hardy) are on assignment to apprehend criminal Heinrich (Til Schweiger). Instructions from their boss Collins (Angela Bassett) to be discreet are gleefully ignored, leading to a high-profile shootout. The buddies then return to headquarters to face the music. To lighten the mood, ladies' man FDR helps shy and gallant Tuck to dip his toes back into the dating pool by creating a flattering profile for his friend on a relationships website. Soon after, Tuck accepts a first date with Lauren (Reese Witherspoon), a beautiful consumer testing manager, who is recovering from a break-up from her sweetheart (Warren Christie). Tuck is instantly smitten, but soon after the date FDR also encounters Lauren and he falls for her acidic wit. Armed with a dazzling array of hi-tech gadgetry, FDR and Tuck compete against each other to win Lauren's heart. She is torn between the two men, unaware they know each other, and seeks advice from her potty-mouthed sister Trish (Chelsea Handler). This Means War starts with a bang and McG knows how to bolt together explosive sequences that quicken the pulse. However, comic interludes don't always hit their target and the voyeuristic nature of the men's surveillance leaves a nasty taste in the mouth. Crucially, the film's inherent design flaw – we have to side with one of her suitors – means half the audience will be disappointed by the overblown climax when the love-struck lady makes her choice. The film plays to Witherspoon's strengths as a comic actress, placing her at the centre of some elaborately staged set pieces, unaware her two handsome suitors are best buddies.

It's time to veg out

AS 'grow your own' campaigns have gathered momentum in the last few years, many people have had a go at growing their own veg, even if they've just had time and space to sow a few lettuces in a window box.

But if you're one of the few who has steered away from veg, perhaps preferring your flower borders to look ordered and formal, now's the time to create some space especially for edibles and think about what you are going to sow.

Check the soil temperature first, because if you sow too early the seedlings will struggle and become vulnerable to pests and diseases. It's likely that the recent cold snap will have delayed many sowings for a few weeks.

As a general guideline, in mild areas early sowings can be made into the ground towards the end of February, but in colder areas you need to cover seed beds with plastic sheeting or cloches for at least three weeks before sowing, to warm up the soil. But nothing is set in stone.

Use a soil thermometer to check the soil temperature in the morning, pushing it 5-10cm (2-4in) into the soil. If it remains above 7C (45F) for a week, you should be safe to start sowing early vegetables in prepared beds. Seed sown before that temperature is reached will germinate, but will be more susceptible to soil diseases.

by Hannah Stephenson

To prepare a seed bed, the soil needs to be broken down to a fine tilth and the surface levelled off with a rake – it should end up like a fine, crumbly texture. Throw out any stones, weeds and other debris you come across while doing this. It's also advisable to add some fertiliser such as chicken manure pellets or blood, fish and bone to the soil before sowing.

Then you can grow a wealth of vegetables, from spring onions, leeks, beetroot and radishes, to carrots, parsnips and kohlrabi. If the area you have is too small to rotate crops, then grow what you like where you can, but don't plant the same crop in the same place two years running.

Always sow vegetable seeds in straight rows, which makes it easier to hoe weeds out during the growing season.

Set out a garden line or pegs and string to mark the position of the rows and use the row spacing for each vegetable following the instructions on the seed packet. Allow for different spacing between rows of different crops, so that a larger one doesn't swamp a smaller one.

Then make a seed drill using a narrow trowel or stick and sow the seeds as evenly as you can in the bottom of the drill.

After sowing, cover big seeds such as peas with around 1cm of soil, but less for smaller seeds. Water thoroughly with a fine sprinkler which won't disturb the soil or wash away the seeds afterwards.

Carrots can be sown at two-week intervals to provide a succession of crops during the year. Early potatoes can be chitted, putting them upright in seed trays in a frost-free place such as a windowsill with the end with the most eyes uppermost. They should be kept in a cool, light place so that the shoots grow strong.

Once they have sprouted, select two or three fat shoots to grow on and rub out the rest. Seed potatoes can be bought from garden centres. Don't risk using old ones from the supermarket because they're more likely to become diseased.

One of the earliest vegetables to crop is the broad bean. Sow seeds in pots in a cold frame or greenhouse, which will produce seedlings ready to plant out in March.

Quick-growing lettuces such as Little Gem can be sown in late February or March in mild areas, in rows 15cm (6in) apart. If the soil is workable, make a first sowing of the quick-growing carrot variety, Early Nantes.

When seedlings are large enough, any surplus can be pulled (which means thinning out). Larger clumps can be thinned to leave one or two strong seedlings.

Other vegetables such as celeriac can be sown indoors in pots from late February to mid-March but they need a minimum temperature of 15C (60F) to germinate.

If you persevere with growing from seed, before you know it, you will be sitting down to a meal of delicious vegetables you have grown yourself – and will probably have enough left over to give to your neighbours!

SOWING THE SEEDS: Broad beans make a welcome addition to any plot. Left, your vegetable patch could soon be sprouting.

Top tips for '12' buyers

NEW '12-plate' vehicles are on sale this week and the automotive industry is geared up for its busiest month of the year.

Industry body the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders (SMMT) expects around 350,000 new cars to be registered during March, with motorists spending in the region of £5 billion on the latest new vehicles.

March is the biggest month for dealers across the UK and accounts for almost a fifth of the year's trade with the other plate-change month of September, traditionally the second busiest. More than 300 technology-packed models are currently on the market, representing one of the biggest-ever choices for UK motorists.

"The March market holds a great deal of significance for the UK's franchised dealer network, motorists and the wider economy," said Paul Everitt, SMMT Chief Executive. "More than 350,000 vehicles will be registered in the month with private motorists and business buyers capitalising on the ever increasing levels of fuel efficiency, safety, comfort and practicality of today's vehicles."

ON THE SHOPPING LIST

FUEL EFFICIENCY – Average new car CO2 emissions are now 138g/km with official miles per gallon figures typically exceeding 50mpg.

SECURITY – Theft of vehicles has fallen almost 70 per cent in the past 10 years, while theft from vehicles has also dropped significantly by over 50 per cent.

SAFETY – 77 per cent of new cars tested by Euro-NCAP in 2011 achieved five stars and in the last 10 years road fatalities have fallen almost 50 per cent.

COLOUR – Silver and blue coloured cars are expected to make-up the lion's share of March registrations.

SIZE/TYPE – Last year, the Supermini segment was most popular, accounting for 36.3 per cent of the total market.

ALTERNATIVE FUELS – Market share of alternatively fuelled vehicles is growing steadily with more hybrid, pure electric and biofuel models available than ever before.

NEW TECHNOLOGY – Digital radio is rapidly becoming the 'must-have' option. Over a fifth of new cars have digital radio fitted as standard, as consumers look to the 2015 switchover.

THE ECONOMY – From the sale of new cars, VAT alone will see over £1 billion contributed to the UK economy in March.

The registration plate changed in 1999 from alphabetical to the twice-yearly March and September system that uses the year as an identifier. The new system uses two letters at the start of the plate to identify the region a vehicle is registered in, the following two digits refer to the year (ie in 2012 the March plate will be '12', in September it will be '62'). The final three letters are randomly allocated to new car dealerships across the country.

Industry body, Motor Codes, operates a government-backed Code of Practice for new cars that covers over 99 per cent of all new cars sold in the UK and regulates the advertising, sale, warranty, replacement parts availability and complaint handling processes for new cars.

That's Peachey! Bradley sparks Haverhill to wins

>> UNDER-SEVEN

Haverhill racked up two wins and a draw from their three-match series against Stowmarket after making a remarkable comeback in their first match.

They made a slow start and found themselves 15-0 down before launching a comeback with a try from Bradley Peachey. Oliver Garner and Peachey again levelled the scores before Garner and Kofi Brandt, with his first try, sealed a 25-15 victory. Skipper Angus Duckworth gave Haverhill a flying start to the second game with two tries – scored either side of a touchdown for Garner. However, it needed a late try from Garner to seal a 20-20 scoreline. The final try of the game. Mason Gillingham and Garner gave Haverhill a 10-5 lead in the final game, a position which was improved straight from the restart when Crook was stopped short of the line. However, Gillingham took the pass to make it 15-5 and Peachey crossed for the final try to clinch a 20-15 win.

>> UNDER-EIGHT

THE re-arranged fixture against Stowmarket opened with a bang for Haverhill, when Ben Warren weaved through a compact defence to score. However, the home side swiftly took charge with three tries only for Riley Brown to counter with two of his own. Further tries from Luke Godfrey, Warren and Brown secured a 30-30 draw. Playing against a fresh Stowmarket team in their second game, Haverhill slipped to a 40-15 defeat. They found themselves 15-0 behind before Brown scored their first try, and had to absorb constant pressure as Stowmarket piled forward. Brown and Warren added further scores as the defence stood up well to the pressure.

>> UNDER-NINE

THE travelling party from Haverhill showed good sportsmanship when they agreed to stage a joint-training session with the small number of players from the host club. In the game that followed Ronnie Short and Luke Wheeler shared the man-of-the-match award in an enjoyable and competitive tie in which players from both clubs benefited and contributed well.

>> UNDER-12

Stowmarket 64 Haverhill 29 Haverhill felt the scoreline did not reflect the effort and commitment shown by a squad, which although short on numbers and self-belief, could yet turn out to be a force. Stowmarket took immediate charge of a game played in quarters and opened a 36-0 lead, despite fearless tackling from Oliver Cooper and Cameron Forsyth. However, tactical changes and pleas from the coaches to win the second quarter, sparked Haverhill into life and outstanding rucking, with the ball moved through the phases, produced scores from Tyler Neil, Kit Browne and Oliver Foley score tries, Josh Moseley adding a conversion to send the side into half time 36-17 adrift. Stowmarket benefited though from a larger squad and the introduction of fresh players started to tell. Kian Quinn and Oliver Cooper produced good challenges to stem the flow of points, but it was not until the final quarter that Haverhill increased their tally with tries from Foley and Cameron Forsyth.

Lee-thal Duffield seals it

Champions: HESMC celebrate victory.

HESMC 4 AFC Thurlow 1.

Treadfirst Sudbury Sunday League, Division Three Knockout Cup final HESMC maintained the momentum from last season when they won the Division Four Knockout Cup, by lifting the Division Three equivalent.

Although Thurlow matched them in the early stages, HESMC took the game by the throat when Lee Duffield broke the deadlock.

Thurlow managed to carve out some chances but were unable to take them, and Duffield showed how it was done when he pounced for the second goal after being set up by Terry Eley, Lee Miller and 16-year-old Ryan Fowler, their man of the match.

Duffield then turned provider, swinging over a cross for Eley to volley home.

However, HESMC suffered a setback towards the end of the half when wing-back Carl Bradford had to go off with a head injury and Thurlow made the extra man count when Dave Smith pulled a goal back. Heartened, Thurlow pressed in the early stages of the second half but HESMC responded with Jermaine Onley hitting the bar again.

However, the game turned into a contest between Thurlow keeper Adrian Johnston and the HESMC strikers, which the keeper looked like winning until substitute Sam Pass tore on to a through pass and added the fourth.

Charlie stars as Wrating go through

West Wrating 7 Cambridge Celts 2 BM Kempton 9v9 League Cup, semi-final A SUPERB second-half performance earned West Wrating a final showdown against Burwell Tigers. Callum Cooley and Lennon Westley gave Wrating the early advantage but they relaxed their grip and only some fine saves Charlie Mitchison, who shrugged off an elbow injury, kept Celts at bay until they scored a deserved equaliser just before the break.

The half-time team talk seemed to steady their nerves, though, and Wrating went back on the offensive in the second half, stretching their lead with two goals from Dan Cordwell and one from Aiden Comer.

Celts' efforts were rewarded with a second goal, but Comer and Dan Green, who capped his best performance since joining the club with the final goal, earned them a place in the final against Tigers, who beat Cherry Hinton 4-1.

Newmarket Town 5 Kedington 2 Cambridge and District Colts League Cup, under-14 semi-final KEDINGTON were given a taste of what Division A opposition is like when they came up against a strong Newmarket side.

The Division B side, aiming for promotion, were put under pressure from the start and, although they worked their way back into the tie, Kedington were rocked by two goals, with only timely blocks and some good saves from keeper Jack Davis preventing a third. Skipper Jason Moore dragged his side back into the game, volleying home after Sam Street had headed on Leon Bailey's free kick, but any hopes of a turnaround were snuffed out by Newmarket's three-goal burst.

Moore completed the scoring, firing in a cross that looped over the keeper and dipped under the bar.

West Wrating 5 Elsenham 1

Camb Mini League, under-10 TWO goals each Nathan Johnson and James Iron provided the foundations for Wrating's victory.

Jack Lisher completed the scoreline. Cambourne Eagles 2 West Wrating 4 Cambridge and District Colts League, under-15A WRATING always looked in control, but they needed a concentrated effort to see off a well-drilled and disciplined side.

An inspirational performance from skipper Liam Mitchell kept them in the ascendancy after an own goal and a strike from Earle Lambert gave them a 2-0 lead.

Eagles pulled a goal back but Sam Ager restored Wrating's two-goal cushion with a powerful drive.

The home side pulled another goal back with a well-executed free kick two minutes from time, but Lambert struck his second to seal the points.

Godmanchester Rov 2 West Wrating 5 Cambridge and District Colts League, under-16A A QUALITY strike from Dan Espin broke Godmanchester's early domination and gave West Wrating a foothold in the game.

And soon after Jack Whiting dusted himself down after being up-ended to hammer home a 25-yard free kick to put them in charge.

Rovers pulled one back, but Whiting, Jack Wheeler and a superb diving header from Zak Ollington – rounding off a move instigated by man-of-the-match Jack Child – took Wrating out of reach. A consolation goal in the dying seconds completed the scoring.

Duo scoop club awards

Well done: Jack Whiting and Zak Ollington have picked up West Wrating's under-16s monthly awards, which are sponsored by the Rye Street Group of Haverhill.

Whiting has been outstanding, scoring three goals as Wrating went through February unbeaten, and his form earned him the Player of the Month award. And Ollington earned the Goal of the Month prize for his stunning strike which helped Wrating overturn a three-goal deficit against KC Cougars.

Rovers' late show makes Hunt's day!

We're flying: Lewis Brown celebrates after scoring the third goal in a stunning start for HSA in their Border League clash against Maldon St Marys

A STRONG second-half performance ensured Haverhill Rovers came away with all three points against the rock-bottom side.

Injuries and the unavailability of regular keepers meant Marcus Hunt went in goal and he pulled off an excellent save late in the second half to preserve Rovers' clean sheet.

The home side's goal led a charmed life in the early stages - hitting the woodwork or finding keeper Ben Cudden in fine form - before Jack Wilkinson gave the visitors the lead in the 41st minute after running on to a superb through ball from Jamie Challis.

But, despite controlling the second half, Rovers did not double their lead until the 77th minute when Cudden misjudged the flight of Wilkinson's corner and Stuart Kingham netted at the far post.

The victory was sealed in the 87th minute when Stuart Wardley's diagonal ball was headed back across goal by substitute Harry Halls.

Fellow sub Louis Harper touched the ball on to Craig Calver, who scored at the near post.

Rovers are at Diss on Saturday and then take on high-flying Ryman League side Lowestoft at the New Croft in the semi-finals of the Suffolk Premier Cup.

THE Haverhill side took a massive step towards promotion, hitting the second-in-the-table team for six to record their 11th straight win.

The game was effectively won in a devastating opening seven-minute spell which produced three goals.

The opener came when when a 30-yard free kick from Scott Wilby was scrambled away to Ryan Geoghegan, who headed home.

On five minutes, Wilby smashed a free kick from a similar position into the top corner and two minutes later his corner was volleyed in at the far post by Lewis Brown.

Maldon managed to get a foothold in the game for the next 20 minutes before Ant Fernandez collected a loose ball 35 yards out and hit a screamer into the top corner.

Brown hit the post before Callum Harrison lobbed the keeper a minute before the break.

Liam Savage's reactions made sure HSA kept a clean sheet as Maldon threatened early in the second half.

But, in the 65th minute, Harrison completed the scoring when the ball fell for him after Alex Westdijk's jinking run was ended on the edge of the penalty area.

Cody Frazier and Harrison had further chances but the result still leaves HSA in the mood for Saturday's revenge mission at home against Mersea Island, who beat them in the reverse fixture in September.

Luke's sharp to stop Wratting

LUKE Little ensured a point for leaders Linton as they were held to a 1-1 draw by West Wratting in the Kershaw League, Premier Division.

Craig Cutts gave the visitors the edge on 20 minutes against the run of play before Little equalised.

Linton manager Adam Norton said: "It's frustrating because they had one shot in the whole game and we must have had 15 or 20 chances, but just couldn't put the ball in the back of the net. If it had been a boxing match, the referee would have stopped it, but if you don't score, you don't deserve to win."

Brian Pilgrim, Wrating joint boss, said: "It was a quality result bearing in mind we let Roger Dourado and Owen Longley play for the reserves in their semi-final (a 6-3 defeat by Fenstanton in the Percy Oldham Cup) and we had three players at an Eighties weekend in Bognor."
